In honor of National Women’s History Month the Center for Women presents

“Solitude of Self: A Reading and Celebration of Elizabeth Cady Stanton”

with

Vivian Gornick and Jan Freeman

Essayist Vivian Gornick and publisher and poet Jan Freeman celebrate Elizabeth Cady Stanton’s life and contributions to the women’s movement.
Named for the 1892 speech that Stanton considered her most important achievement, Gornick and Freeman will offer a reading and contemplation about the suffragist. In 1915, thirteen years after Stanton’s death, the U.S.
Congress reprinted her speech and sent 10,000 copies around the world. It was republished by Freeman and Paris Press. Gornick is the author of the recently published The Solitude of Self: Thinking about Elizabeth Cady Stanton.

Wednesday, March 7, 2007, 7:30 pm
Jones Room, 311 Woodruff Library

Book signing and reception to follow

Co-sponsored by Department of Women’s Studies Jessica Glaser Memorial Lecture, Hightower Lecture Fund, Emory Graduate School, President’s Commission on the Status of Women, Friends of the Emory University Libraries, Creative Writing Program, History Department, and English Department

Book signing by CHARIS: Books & More

For information call 404-727-2001 or email namit2@emory.edu
For a complete calendar of Women’s History Month events go to www.womenscenter.emory.edu